Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 19 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Very wet, especially over the Moors. Coastal gales.

This Evening and Tonight:
Rain will affect much of the region during the evening and overnight, with the heaviest rain falling over Devon and Cornwall. Staying cloudy with strong winds. Feeling mild but tempered by the wind. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Saturday:
Further outbreaks of rain, heaviest to the south of or over higher ground. Some occasional drier spells further east before becoming drier more widely overnight. Mild, despite strong southerly winds. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Showers on Sunday with the odd sunny spell and light winds. Dry and bright on Monday after some early morning rain. Wind and rain return later on Tuesday. Mild throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.